Avish is an indie-pop, acoustic singer-songwriter from New Zealand who primarily writes and sings in Hindi. He first made waves on YouTube as one of India's early online singing sensations with his renditions of popular Bollywood songs, racking up millions of views worldwide and winning two contests hosted by India's biggest music label, T-Series.

This success led him to pursue music more seriously, diving into songwriting and composition. That journey brought him to Mumbai, where his debut single Phir Dikhi Tu was released by TM Music (now Artiste First) after being selected in the Top 10 out of 300+ submissions during a 'Pitch Your Music' session at the All About Music conference.

Since then, Avish has released several independent singles, earned spots on Spotify editorials like "Indiestan" and "Fresh Finds India," and been featured in publications like Rolling Stone India. His latest release, Dhoop, became the first-ever Hindi song to be funded by NZ On Air — a music grant awarded by the New Zealand government.

He also recently collaborated with acclaimed guitarist Warren Mendonsa (Blackstratblues) to put together a series of Avish Live concerts across New Zealand, where he performed his original music live on stage for the first time.

After relocating back to New Zealand during the pandemic, Avish has returned to Mumbai with renewed ambition and a catalogue of new music. He is currently working towards the release of his debut EP, slated for early 2026.
